

The Danse Society new album

After twenty-five years of absence and following the creation of a Facebook group calling for his return, the cult band The Dance Society is back with a new album. Note though that the original singer Steve Rawlings did not take part in the reformation and was replaced by Maethelyiah, singer of Bleeding Mask. The result is necessarily different from the old songs we know.

To find out more about this new album, Change of Skin , visit the official website of the group.